Acupuncture Today - The leading provider of acupuncture and traditional Chinese medicine news and research information in the world - TCM - Find an Acupuncturist
Could acupuncture be the cure for period pain? appeared in Acupuncture Today. Researchers in Australia and New Zealand have found that acupuncture can significantly reduce the severity and duration of period pain. The post further mentioned that acupuncture may be a potential option for cancer-related fatigue. A study published in Supportive Care in Patients with Lung Cancer shows that acupuncture may be a potential adjunct treatment option for cancer-related fatigue. Even a Low Dose of Caffeine Blocks the Effects of Acupuncture. The post examined how caffeine may interfere with the analgesic effects of acupuncture in acute and chronic pain models. The post also mentioned that dry needling is within physical therapists scope of practice. Acupuncture received mixed reviews in new studies on reducing unsafe opioid prescribing. One of the new studies was a Medicaid payer strategy that approved for $5.7 million to focus on non-drug strategies for treating low back pain, including electrotherapy, review finds. The post concluded that acupuncture and non-drug approaches that may work include acupuncture and electrotherapy, review finds. The post also mentioned that North Carolina court rules against acupuncturists and for physical therapists. The post expanded access to nondrug strategies for treating low back pain, including electrotherapy, review finds. The post concluded that acupuncture and non-drug approaches that may work include acupuncture and electrotherapy, review finds.

To Link to AcupunctureToday.com

--- Copy the code between these lines & paste onto your site ---

Contact Us

If you have any questions about how to copy and paste text, or you can opt for a more colorful image link.

--- Copy the code between these lines & paste onto your site ---

This is what your button link will look like once you've pasted it on your website.